Washington Cagers Clip Tigers, 59-55

By Paul Smallwood
Herald Staff Writer

Circleville's cage Tigers suffered their first loss of the season last night at Washington C. H., dropping a close 59-55 decision to the host Blue Lions.

The contest, Circleville's first South Central Ohio League encounter, provided many thrills and exciting moments as both teams played with all out determination.

After the smoke had cleared the Tigers unfortunately discovered that they had lost the game at the foul line. The local forces outscored the Blue Lions, 23-21, from the field but managed only nine foul shots while WCH collected 17 points by way of charity tosses.

The battle, typical of Washington-Circleville athletic engagements, had fans on the edge of their seats most of the night. In all, the game was deadlocked nine times, with first one team then the other grabbing a narrow edge.

THE loss gives Circleville a season record of two wins and one loss. The CHS cagers will attempt to get back on the winning path tonight when dangerous Chillicothe rolls into town.

Although highscoring Bill Johnson was held to 16 points, his lowest in three games, the agile Tiger forward put on quite a show with his favorite jump shot.

Guard Mike Gosler maintained his shooting ability by collecting 12 tallies, mostly on lone one-handed set shots.

Washington's Larry Milstead proved to be a thorn in the Tigers' side as he racked up 24 points to gain scoring laurels for the evening. Most of his points came in the second half and eventually turned the tide in favor of the Blue Lions.

Milstead's teammate Tom Swain also did plenty of damage with 16 points and some commendable floor work.

THE Tigers proved superior in the shooting department, hitting 23 of 55 attempts for a 42 per cent average. WCH took 68 shots and completed 21 for a 31 per cent average.

Circleville scored first when

Johnson hit from underneath, but Swain matched it with a push shot. From that point on fans were assured it was going to be a saw-battle for the rest of the evening.

The score was knotted, 12-12, at the end of the first quarter. In the second period the Tigers found the range to go ahead 25-23 at half-time, thanks to six straight points by Johnson, three by Hosler, two by John Wright and two by Dick Smith.

The third quarter turned out to be a disastrous one for the Tigers as Washington outscored them, 15-9, good for a 38-34 lead. Milstead provided the fireworks in this frame with six points.

Washington went ahead, 40-34, shortly after the fourth quarter got

All Federal Highway Money Already Earmarked in Ohio

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio has set up road projects for all the federal interstate highway money it has received to date from the federal government.

Ohio's highway chief, Charles M. Noble, said today the state has listed with the Federal Bureau of Public Roads enough projects to use up all the federal interstate money available to June 30, 1959.

The third and latest federal allocation for interstate highways is about $85 million, announced last summer. Noble said he does not know how much the next allocation will total.

That allocation — and ones for all the states — will be made after Congress goes over a need study for the entire interstate system, to be presented in January.

It was decided to allocate money to states for interstate highways on the basis of need for federal funds for those roads, beginning next January.

NOBLE THINKS Ohio will benefit by the new formula because of the state's importance in manufacturing and need for good roads to link its major cities.

When the states originally estimated how much their interstate systems would cost, some estimates were not realistic, Noble said that Ohio made a careful original estimate of the cost of the system in the Buckeye State.

The new estimate went to Washington in June and will remain confidential until presented to Congress along with estimates from the other states.

It will not include Ohio mileage added to the interstate system recently because there has not been enough time to make good estimates of costs for those projects.

They include bypasses around Akron, Dayton and Cincinnati and a new U. S. 21 from the Canton area south to the Ohio River. Estimated cost of those projects will be submitted for consideration two years from now, Noble said.

Noble, who points out Ohio is making plans for projects faster than federal funds become available, says Congress will be asked to let the federal government advance money ahead of regular allocations to such states. How the request will be made has not been worked out, Noble said it will be made when Ohio gets a backlog of road plans for which federal funds are not available immediately.

Jury Ponders Case Against Dave Beck

SEATTLE (AP)—Seven men and five women who could not reach agreement Friday in seven hours of deliberations continued today to wrestle with the question of whether Dave Beck stole $1,900 from the union he heads.

The fate of the wealthy, 63-year-old leader of the Teamsters Union went to the jury in the 11th day of his trial on charges he pocketed the proceeds from sale of a union automobile.

The jurors carried with them a dramatic demand by the state's attorneys for conviction on "evidence so overwhelming it's ridiculous for you to leave the jury box."

The final arguments turned even to hearings before a Senate committee investigating labor racketeering early this year in which Beck scores of times refused to answer questions on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

Charles S. Burdell, defense counsel, said the Teamster president should not be convicted "because a group of senators sought to make political capital."

For the state, prosecutor Charles H. Smith described Beck as a "would-be great man who sacrificed loyal employees on the altar of self-preservation."

Beck left the courtroom as soon as the jury took the case and did not return.

Malice in Wills Rapped by Lawyer

CINCINNATI (AP)—A noted Boston attorney says there should be state laws against "poisonous stuff" found in some wills.

Attorney Thomas Lambert said Friday: "The living should not be helpless against the malice of the dead."

Lambert, editor of the Journal of the National Assn. of Claimants Compensation Attorneys, addressed a regional meeting of the group and said the law should prevent a malicious person from "hiding behind his tombstone."

UAW Aide Challenged To Back Up Claims Of Committee 'Bias'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.) said today the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee is exploring "reports of any improper activities" by the United Auto Workers Union.

Mundt said the committee's investigation of violence in the still unsettled 4-year strike by the UAW against the Kohler Co. of Wisconsin "is only one facet of our investigation." He declined to be more specific at this time.

Mundt is a member of the investigating committee. He made his statement in rejecting charges expressed by the AFL-CIO in a resolution accusing the committee of bias on the side of management.

The resolution, adopted by the AFL-CIO Thursday at its convention in Atlantic City, contended the hearings have been used to harass unions and to promote anti-labor legislation. The resolution also alleged that the committee, headed by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) has not shown as much "enthusiasm to expose wrongdoing of management."

SEN. CURTIS (R-Neb.), another member of the committee, also voiced rejection of the resolution's allegations.

The AFL-CIO resolution singled out Mundt, Curtis and Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz.), another member of the eight-man bipartisan committee for criticism.

"We have had many reports of improper activities on the part of the UAW," Mundt said, "and the only way to affirm or invalidate such reports is to conduct an objective investigation, which is precisely what we propose to do."

Emil Mazey, UAW secretary-treasurer, who made the charges, should specify them and back them up with some evidence, Mundt said, if he knows of wrongdoing by employees.

He said the committee would investigate any such cases as fairly as it investigates union people.

Curtis said Mazey should come forward with any evidence.

"If we have conducted a one-sided and biased investigation," Curtis demanded, "why were the Teamsters ousted by the AFL-CIO? Why was the Bakers and Confectionary Workers Union expelled?" The AFL-CIO has ousted both unions from its ranks the basis of testimony brought out by the committee.

Heroic Lineman Honored For Saving Fellow Worker

Joseph C. Gibbs, 106 Rosewood Ave., and two other Circleville men last night were honored for saving the life of a fellow employee.

Gibbs, Roy Harrington, 144½ Watt St., and Leonard Lytle, 601 N. Pickaway St., received citations from the Edison Electric Institute for saving James Craycraft, 417 S. Pickaway St., June 13, 1957. All are employees of the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co.

Craycraft was working with Gibbs atop a pole in downtown Circleville when he came in contact with a 2,400-volt line. Gibbs knocked the unconscious Craycraft from the wire and applied pole-top artificial respiration.

When Craycraft started to breathe again, he was lowered to the ground where Harrington and Lytle also worked on him. Craycraft was rushed to the hospital and soon recovered from the jolt.

Twenty-two persons were present last night as officials of the electric company gathered to award the Edison Institute certificate and medal and lapel pin to Gibbs. The honors were presented by H. V. Potts, Columbus, vice president in charge of employ relations.

POTTS SAID that Gibbs' action was only the second time in the history of the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. that a person trained in first aid has been able to save another's life atop a pole.

Edison Electric Institute is a trade organization representing utility companies all over the United States. Awards by the Edison Institute are rare, Potts declared.

Gibbs' citation read "awarded the Edison Institute medal for saving of human life from death by electric shock by application of manual artificial respiration."

Harrington's citation was for "participating in the saving of human life..." and Lytle's was for "assistance rendered in saving of human life..."

Attending the meeting at Tink's Tavern in addition to those honored and Craycraft were Potts, Charles Hammon, safety director; Richard Dewitt, public relations; Jerry Thomas, safety department; Fred Bovie, general manager of the Southern District; Robert Rannels, assistant general manager of the Southern District.

John Robinson, public relations, all of C & SO, Columbus; Dwight Kuhn, Chillicothe, safety director for the Southern District; Charles T. Gilmore, manager of the Circleville Division, Columbus & Southern Ohio; Eldred Parson, assistant manager Circleville Division; Dr. Frank Moore, company physician.

Robert Morris and Earl Murray, linemen; Carlos Brown, groundman; Don Gatwood, truck driver, and Nolan Sims and Everett Stocklen, customer servicemen.

1,287 Killed By Iran Quake

Outer Mongolia Said Devastated on Dec. 5

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—The Ministry of Post and Telegraph reported today that 1,287 persons were killed by a severe earthquake in Western Iran Friday.

A newspaper correspondent said 500 of the victims were in one West Iranian village alone.

The government said 205 bodies had been recovered in the village of Sereah. Officials declined to estimate the final toll.

Truckloads of food, medicine and tents were being rushed into the mountainous area where the two-minute quake struck before dawn Friday. It was described as equal in violence to one that killed an estimated 2,000 persons last July on Iran's Caspian Sea coast.

Athens and nearby areas of Greece were hit Friday by a sharp quake but no casualties were reported. There were no reports of shocks in Turkey, which lies between Iran and Greece.

THE SOVIET Tass News Agency meanwhile reported that a quake Dec. 5 hit Outer Mongolia with catastrophic force and landslides are continuing. Casualties were not reported.

The Mongolian quake was reported centered in one of the world's most desolate areas near the junction of Mongolia, the Soviet Union and China's Sinkiang Province. One Tokyo reading indicated the quake was equal to one that killed 44,000 persons in the Japanese capital in 1923.

U.S. Chief Starting Round of Conferences At Paris Gathering

PARIS (AP)—President Eisenhower told the NATO allies here today that they face a Soviet challenge to their very survival as independent nations.

They can meet this period of test, Eisenhower said on landing in Paris for the NATO summit conference, only through partnership in spiritual, economic and military strength.

Eisenhower expressed confidence that the 15-nation alliance could meet the "despotic and continuing threat from the east" in an effective manner.

He predicted that they would not only strengthen their protective shield of NATO military forces but also reinforce other aspects of the coalition as well.

Eisenhower arrived by plane with an offer of atomic missiles for allied armies and an appeal for greater unity in the North Atlantic coalition.

MUCH OF the President's remarks were clearly designed to bid for the good will of the French. They are demanding full support of France's position in North Africa as a price of unity and are ruffled because they feel Britain and the United States are trying to assign them a subordinate role in the Atlantic alliance.

Eisenhower said France was one of the first to seek the creation of "the defensive shield we know as NATO."

Negro Clergymen Thank White Stand

ATLANTA (AP)—Five prominent Atlanta Negro clergymen have thanked the 80 white ministers who issued a Nov. 3 manifesto on race relations in a statement saying that "All problems can be solved if men are willing to solve them on the basis of Christianity, justice, equity and equality."

The clergymen also said in their statement Friday that the forthright position of the ministers "if used as a basis... will result in great good for all of us here in our dear Southland, and here in our American life and culture."

HELP RIGHT TO BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS

Jury Ponders Case Against Dave Beck

SEATTLE (AP)—Seven men and five women who could not reach agreement Friday in seven hours of deliberations continued today to wrestle with the question of whether Dave Beck stole $1,900 from the union he heads.

The fate of the wealthy, 63-year-old leader of the Teamsters Union went to the jury in the 11th day of his trial on charges he pocketed the proceeds from sale of a union automobile.

The jurors carried with them a dramatic demand by the state's attorneys for conviction on "evidence so overwhelming it's ridiculous for you to leave the jury box."

The final arguments turned even to hearings before a Senate committee investigating labor racketeering early this year in which Beck scores of times refused to answer questions on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

Charles S. Burdell, defense counsel, said the Teamster president should not be convicted "because a group of senators sought to make political capital."

For the state, Prosecutor Charles H. Smith described Beck as a "would-be great man who sacrificed loyal employees on the altar of self-preservation."

Beck left the courtroom as soon as the jury took the case and did not return.

Malice in Wills Rapped by Lawyer

CINCINNATI (AP)—A noted Boston attorney says there should be state laws against "poisonous stuff" found in some wills.

Attorney Thomas Lambert said Friday: "The living should not be helpless against the malice of the dead."

Lambert, editor of the Journal of the National Assn. of Claimants Compensation Attorneys, addressed a regional meeting of the group and said the law should prevent a malicious person from "hiding behind his tombstone."

Kathy, 4, Gets Kitten that Purrs From Boy, 7, with Aid from Police

CHICAGO (AP)—A summertime romance blossomed into an early Christmas Friday for 7-year-old Brian Soncrant and 4-year-old Kathy Brown. But it took a bit of doing from police.

Little Kathy, of Chicago, had expressed a wish for a cuddly gray kitten ever since she met Brian while vacationing near his Birmingham, Mich., home two years ago. Brian and his five sisters all have kittens of their own.

The young lad decided this would make a fine Christmas gift for Kathy.

But, faced with geographical and financial obstacles, he took his problem right to the top—Chicago's police commissioner. Friday morning Commissioner Timothy O'Connor received a note addressed to the "Honorable Chief of Police."

Enclosed was $5 and a request "that one of your nice policemen go to a pet shop for me and get this little girl a kitty that purrs with a red ribbon and a bell on its neck."

Brian said he would have sent one himself but "it would cost me too much money to send one by freight (six)."

Chicago's busy police machinery jumped into action and Friday afternoon a gray "kitty that purrs" was presented to Kathy

Tigers Meet Chillicothe

Cavaliers Sport Unbeaten Record

Herald Staff Writer

Circleville's hardwood Tigers will host the strong Cavaliers of Chillicothe tonight in the E. Mill St. gym.

The Tigers will make an attempt to get back on the winning track after suffering a 59-55 defeat at Washington C. H. last night. To date the local five has wins over Athens and Columbus Aquinas.

Chillicothe will come north with an undefeated team which has its sights set on winning the Central Ohio League crown for the second year in a row.

Highlighting the Cavaliers appearance will be Gordon Mickey, big 6-7 center who is rapidly becoming a top candidate for All-Ohio honors. Reports from south of the county line indicate that he has plenty of reinforcements in the Chillicothe scoring department.

GHS Coach Dick Boyd will depend on big Jon Parcher and Bill Johnson to stop Mickey under the boards and also come through with some points.

The two local cagers each tallied 16 points in the losing effort at Washington last night. It was the highest point production for Parcher in three games, giving an indication that the 6-5 center perhaps has hit his stride.

Without a doubt the Tigers will be out to dump the highly-touted Cavaliers who handed the local forces a loss at Chillicothe last year.

Wrong Place, Day Picked For Holdup

NEW YORK (AP)—It was the wrong time and the wrong place to attempt a bank robbery. First off, it was Friday the thirteenth, a day any self-respecting bank robber will tell you to lay low.

Also it was payday for cops. A branch of the Chemical Bank Exchange bank is located near the 54th St. precinct station. And that's where a lot of cops cash their checks.

Apparently untutored in all this, Bernard Jackson, 27, walked into the bank Friday and ordered John A. Cronin, the assistant manager to bring him $50,000.

Cronin walked across the bank lobby to the tellers' cages where three policemen were cashing their checks. He whispered what was going on.

Officer Robert Tennant whipped out his gun, walked over to Jackson, and said: "Don't put your hands in your pocket."

Jackson was booked on charges of attempted robbery and illegal possession of a gun.

Texas Students Set To Fire Rocket To 2-Mile Height

BEEVILLE, Tex. (AP)—A group of students today hope to fire off three missiles with the largest expected to soar up for more than two miles.

The biggest rocket is nearly eight feet tall and weighs 120 pounds. It is expected to reach an altitude of 12,000 feet. The launching will be at a ranch near this south Texas town.

Jim Infante, director of research for the Southwestern Rocket Society, said the larger rocket would carry three pounds of electronic equipment to gauge altitude and velocity information. The society is composed of chemical, physics and mathematics students at the University of Texas.

underway and managed to stay out front for the rest of the game. Parcher, Hosler and Johnson canned 19 points between them in this last frame but their efforts were not enough to cope with the production of Millstead and Co.

CIRCLEVILLE lost both ends of the twin bill, dropping the reserve contest, 43-30.

The Kittens ran up against a speedy and tall Washington outfit which excelled in both offense and defense. The locals again were plagued with inability to connect from the field, a problem which has been encountered in all three of their games this year.

The Kittens' Jake Bailey registered 11 points and came through with some good floorwork. Center Larry Hannahs gave an assist with nine tallies.

Washington's reserves were paced by Stillings who capitalized on an accurate set shot to rack up 23 points.

Both games were witnessed by a large turnout of local fans who lent some valuable moral support under the direction of Circleville's hardworking corps of varsity and reserve cheerleaders.

Huge Automobile Show Booked for Chicago

DETROIT (AP)—Probably the greatest number of cars ever shown in a major automobile show will be displayed here Jan. 4-12.

The 50th renewal of the extravaganza has been termed the costliest and most complete showing of automotive products in history. The scores of vehicles, both United States and European built, along with their setting and collateral exhibits, represent a valuation of $20 million.

It took twelve years to complete the construction of the Statue of Liberty and it was exhibited in France before being sent to the United States.

Ike's Missile-Satellite Plan Inadequate, Probers Claim

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Democratic senators today criticized as inadequate the Eisenhower administration's moves to speed production of missiles and satellites.

Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said in advance of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee's resumption of hearings on the programs, "It is apparent that our basic need is for the same drive and energy at high levels that we have at the working levels."

Johnson said the subcommittee he heads is "looking for positive, aggressive proposals" to match Russian satellite and missile development and has not found them in the top levels of those handling the programs.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said the missile program remains "shrouded in confusion and bogged down in duplicating responsibilities" despite administration speedup efforts. "Nobody but the President can bring order into this situation," the Tennessee senator said.

Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass.), another subcommittee member, said he thinks the line of command is clear, reaching directly up to the President.

"The President is the czar of the missiles program but I don't think he will have to make many decisions because I think the confusion is being cleared up rapidly," he said.

The subcommittee called Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commanding general of the army ballistics missile center at Huntsville, Ala., as the first of several witnesses to be examined today.

Wernher von Braun, former German scientist and director of the Development Operations Division of the Huntsville center, was to follow Medaris.

Johnson praised the testimony before the committee Friday night of Lt. Gen. James W. Gavin, who said it is all-important for the United States to beat Russia to the moon.

"We have got to get out there and get out there first," Gavin declared.

Gavin, the Army's chief of missiles, said the Army has been frustrated for several years in its attempts to get approval for use of the Jupiter, an intermediate range ballistic missile, to launch a satellite.

The Russian Sputnik launching was "perhaps the most significant military thing of our time," Gavin testified.

Gavin told the senators that from the standpoint of over-all military power the United States is behind Russia. This conflicted with testimony given previously by Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Gavin said he thought greater U. S. military efficiency might be achieved by establishing a "senior officers staff" with both command and planning functions, which could make quick decisions. Under such a plan, the joint chiefs would be removed from their present top command functions.

Red Challenge

Zoli. The meetings will be held Monday through Wednesday.

Despite his recent illness, Eisenhower had a busy schedule attending plenary sessions of the NATO Council and conferring with allied leaders individually.

He was scheduled to begin his talks this afternoon with Gaillard at the U. S. embassy if the visit is more than a courtesy call. Eisenhower may get from the young premier some straight talk on European criticism of U. S. NATO policies.

Gaillard wants U. S. and British support for France's position in North Africa. France and other European countries would like a decisive voice in the control of any U. S. nuclear weapon to be stockpiled in Europe. Under U. S. law, the nuclear warheads must be kept in U. S. custody and only the President can make any decision on their use.

TO INDUCE European allies now, and the U. S. Congress later, to go along with the major U. S. proposals for strengthening and modernizing NATO, Eisenhower likely will need all the persuasiveness and prestige he can muster.

Communists have called the NATO conference a session for war preparations.

Anti-NATO notes from Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin reached several NATO governments as their representatives were preparing to leave for Paris. Soviet ambassadors in Italy, Turkey, Norway and Canada have delivered letters similar to those already sent to Eisenhower and other Western leaders.

Buttoned Lip Stalls Probe Of Gangsters

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Gangland's big weapon — the buttoned lip — frustrated legislative probes today in their drive to find out why those underworld bigwigs huddled at Appalachian last month.

Those of the mobsters most certain to know the score have ducked behind the Fifth Amendment when hauled before the watchdog committee.

And the few figures who would talk, including the namesake son of host Joseph Barbara, claimed they hadn't the faintest idea why 60 mobsters and pals would convene at Barbara's hilltop mansion near Binghamton.

Although plainly discouraged, the three-man subcommittee pressed doggedly ahead into the third day of its public hearing, calling a quartet of Buffalo area "delegates" to testify.

On tap were: James LaDuca of Lewiston, an ousted union official; Anthony Magaddino, a Niagara Falls undertaker; Roy Carlisi, a Buffalo tavern owner; and Dominick D'Agostino of Niagara Falls.

LaDuca was fired as secretary-treasurer of a Buffalo hotel and restaurant workers local after state police raided the convention on Nov. 14.

The raid flushed more than 60 mobsters and their pals from the Barbara hearth. A handful beat it into the woods, only to be nabbed, questioned and released along with the others.

Wrong Place, Day Picked For Holdup

NEW YORK (AP)—It was the wrong time and the wrong place to attempt a bank robbery.

First off, it was Friday the thirteenth, a day any self-respecting bank robber will tell you to lay low.

Also it was payday for cops. A branch of the Chemical Bank Exchange bank is located near the 54th St. precinct station. And that's where a lot of cops cash their checks.

Apparently untutored in all this, Bernard Jackson, 27, walked into the bank Friday and ordered John A. Cronin, the assistant manager to bring him $50,000.

Cronin walked across the bank lobby to the tellers' cages where three policemen were cashing their checks. He whispered what was going on.

Officer Robert Tennant whipped out his gun, walked over to Jackson, and said: "Don't put your hands in your pocket."

Jackson was booked on charges of attempted robbery and illegal possession of a gun.

Texas Students Set To Fire Rocket To 2-Mile Height

BEEVILLE, Tex. (AP)—A group of students today hope to fire off three missiles with the largest expected to soar up for more than two miles.

The biggest rocket is nearly eight feet tall and weighs 120 pounds. It is expected to reach an altitude of 12,000 feet. The launching will be at a ranch near this south Texas town.

Jim Infante, director of research for the Southwestern Rocket Society, said the larger rocket would carry three pounds of electronic equipment to gauge altitude and velocity information. The society is composed of chemical, physics and mathematics students at the University of Texas.

She Only Exhausted From Yule Shopping

DETROIT (AP)—Two-year-old Kenneth Rogers is ticking away and is keeping good time.

Kenneth swallowed his mother's wrist watch Friday after first removing the band, of course.

Doctors sent him home after X-rays revealed the watch in his tummy was still running. More X-rays will be taken before doctors decide how to rid Kenneth of the watch.

underway and managed to stay out front for the rest of the game. Pancher, Hosler and Johnson canned 19 points between them in this last frame but their efforts were not enough to cope with the production of Miltstead and Co.

CIRCLEVILLE lost both ends of the twin bill, dropping the reserve contest, 43-30.

The Kittens ran up against a speedy and tall Washington outfit which excelled in both offense and defense. The locals again were plagued with inability to connect from the field, a problem which has been encountered in all three of their games this year.

The Kittens' Jake Bailey registered 11 points and came through with some good floorwork. Center Larry Hannahs gave an assist with nine tallies.

Washington's reserves were paced by Stillings who capitalized on an accurate set shot to rack up 23 points.

Both games were witnessed by a large turnout of local fans who lent some valuable moral support under the direction of Circleville's hardworking corps of varsity and reserve cheerleaders.

Huge Automobile Show Booked for Chicago

DETROIT (AP)—Probably the greatest number of cars ever shown in a major automobile show will be displayed here Jan. 4-12.

The 50th renewal of the extravaganza has been termed the costliest and most complete showing of automotive products in history.

The scores of vehicles, both United States and European built, along with their setting and collateral exhibits, represent a valuation of $20 million.

It took twelve years to complete the construction of the Statue of Liberty and it was exhibited in France before being sent to the United States.

Ike's Missile-Satellite Plan Inadequate, Probers Claim

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Democratic senators today criticized as inadequate the Eisenhower administration's moves to speed production of missiles and satellites.

Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said in advance of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee's resumption of hearings on the programs, "It is apparent that our basic need is for the same drive and energy at high levels that we have at the working levels."

Johnson said the subcommittee he heads is "looking for positive, aggressive proposals" to match Russian satellite and missile development and has not found them in the top levels of those handling the programs.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said the missile program remains "shrouded in confusion and bogged down in duplicating responsibilities" despite administration speedup efforts. "Nobody but the President can bring order into this situation," the Tennessee senator said.

Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass.), another subcommittee member, said he thinks the line of command is clear, reaching directly up to the President.

"The President is the czar of the missile program but I don't think he will have to make many decisions because I think the confusion is being cleared up rapidly," he said.

The subcommittee called Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commanding general of the army ballistics missile center at Huntsville, Ala., as the first of several witnesses to be examined today.

Wernher von Braun, former German scientist and director of the Development Operations Division of the Huntsville center, was to follow Medaris.

Johnson praised the testimony before the committee Friday night of Lt. Gen. James W. Gavin, who said it is all-important for the United States to beat Russia to the moon.

"We have got to get out there and get out there first," Gavin declared.

Gavin, the Army's chief of missiles, said the Army has been frustrated for several years in its attempts to get approval for use of the Jupiter, an intermediate range ballistic missile, to launch a satellite.

The Russian Sputnik launching was "perhaps the most significant military thing of our time," Gavin testified.

Gavin told the senators that from the standpoint of over-all military power the United States is behind Russia. This conflicted with testimony given previously by Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Gavin said he thought greater U. S. military efficiency might be achieved by establishing a "senior officers staff" with both command and planning functions, which could make quick decisions. Under such a plan, the joint chiefs would be removed from their present top command functions.

Red Challenge

Zoli. The meetings will be held Monday through Wednesday.

Despite his recent illness, Eisenhower had a busy schedule attending plenary sessions of the NATO Council and conferring with allied leaders individually.

He was scheduled to begin his talks this afternoon with Gaillard at the U. S. embassy if the visit is more than a courtesy call. Eisenhower may get from the young premier some straight talk on European criticism of U. S. NATO policies.

Gaillard wants U. S. and British support for France's position in North Africa. France and other European countries would like a decisive voice in the control of any U. S. nuclear weapon to be stockpiled in Europe. Under U. S. law, the nuclear warheads must be kept in U. S. custody and only the President can make any decision on their use.

TO INDUCE European allies to now, and the U. S. Congress later, to go along with the major U. S. proposals for strengthening and modernizing NATO, Eisenhower likely will need all the persuasiveness and prestige he can muster.

Communists have called the NATO conference a session for war preparations.

Anti-NATO notes from Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin reached several NATO governments as their representatives were preparing to leave for Paris. Soviet ambassadors in Italy, Turkey, Norway and Canada have delivered letters similar to those already sent to Eisenhower and other Western leaders.

Herein we find indisputable evidence of the coming of the new day of hope in which we live today, and the hope of the world, which we possess and which we ought to share with all nations. This could be our "secret weapon" of undefeatable power if we would use it wisely and consistently.

The choir will be directed by Mrs. Clark Will, and will sing the anthem, "Night In Bethlehem," from the cantata, "Holy Child" by Parker. Christmas carols will be used throughout the worship service and will include: "Good Christian Men Rejoice," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Silent Night, Holy Night."

THE CHURCH'S REAL PLACE

(By the REV. T. W. BROWN, pastor of the Second Baptist Church) Circleville, Ohio

The Church is still our greatest potential power. It still has the largest organized group among the nations labor, business, and professional people, and society in general still expect the church to be all things to them. Some groups actually think they have a corner on the church. And there are those who think the church has no definite designs in a world of reality. They suggest that the church is other-worldly and serves no definite end save to lull the people into complacency, deaden their sensibilities to stern realities, in the hope that all things will be corrected in the life to come. On the contrary, the church is a dynamic, crusading movement that aims at enabling all phases of human society to serve all who avail themselves of its ministrations. The church is not to be the tool of any special interests, nor to be misused politically, economically, socially nor otherwise. But it most certainly relates itself to all worthy objectives by furnishing them moral and spiritual idealism. Jesus was hardly concerned about creeds, ceremonies and theology. He was concerned chiefly about life situations. Too prone are we to separate religion from life.

We make it a mere embellishment and not a vital and essential force in our lives. The spiritual life of man is so interwoven with his social and economic life, that to completely isolate them from each other would be to make religion a mere abstraction and the church a nonentity. Religion as interpreted by the Christian Church is not something apart from life.

It is a Way of life. Its purpose is to extend Christ's Kingdom and life to the realm of the sacred all-over phases of human life. The church has a definite responsibility in this period of stress and strain, uncertainty and moral laxity, when people are being uprooted and shifted here and there because of social, economic and political unrest. The church must stand as a beacon to guide those lost, as it were, at sea.

The church must give sanctuary to the migrants, and seek to adjust them to a strange place and assimilate and integrate them into their new environment. The church must offer hope, guidance, fellowship and moral idealism. The church should not abandon its lofty stand and resort to cheap entertainment in competition with those places that appeal to the baser instincts of mankind. The church still offers the greatest opportunity to mingle with the masses. Those of better educational advantages should go into the church and move about amongst the people and share with those who have not been so fortunate. Those settled in any community ought to teach and encourage newcomers to obey the laws, to be quiet and orderly. There is entirely too much riot and abuse of privileges in our midst, and if not checked, it will make life miserable for all of us. This is a challenge to church people, especially to the intellectuals. I am happy to say that in our church, and in other churches, there are several persons who figure prominently in the civic, cultural and social life of the nation, and at the same time answer the call of the church. We could wish that there were more.

The church cannot attain a higher level until it attracts a higher calibre of active communicants and can appreciate a high type minister to the extent that they will support him well so he will not be forced to cater to folk's baser instincts and turn the worship into a virtual floor show to get a living salary. Amen

BRING A FRIEND TO CHURCH WITH YOU

Rev. Mitchell to Speak On "A New Day of Hope"

The third Sunday in Advent will be observed in the Presbyterian Church at the 10:30 a. m. worship. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell will preach on the theme: "A New Day of Hope."

The text will be taken from the Book of Isaiah. Herein we find indisputable evidence of the coming of the new day of hope in which we live today, and the hope of the world, which we possess and which we ought to share with all nations. This could be our "secret weapon" of undefeatable power if we would use it wisely and consistently.

The Choir will be directed by Mrs. Clark Will, and will sing the anthem, "Night In Bethlehem," from the cantata, "Holy Child" by Parker. Christmas carols will be used throughout the worship service and will include: "Good Christian Men Rejoice," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Calvary E.U.B.

"The Original and Duplications" is the sermon title chosen by Rev. H. Dale Rough, Pastor of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church for the third Sunday in Advent.

Mr. Wayne Reno will play: "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me" by John Gould, as the Prelude, and "Silent Night", by Franz Gruber as the offertory.

The Junior Choir will sing an Anthem entitled, "Christmas Lullaby" by Mozart.

Hymns to be sung by the congregation will be: "As with Gladness Men of Old", "The Church's One Foundation", and "Saviour! Teach Me Day by Day."

This will be the second of a series of three Advent sermons.

The Hymns for the services will include: "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" by Charles Wesley; "Gloria in Excelsis" by an Anonymous writer; "As With Gladness Men of Old" by William C. Dix; and "Come Thou Long Expected Jesus" by Charles Wesley.

The Youth Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Larry Graham, will sing for their anthem in the early service a Polish Carol "When the Infant Jesus". The Adult Choir, under the direction of Charles Kirkpatrick, will use for its anthem "French Noel" by McGraw in the 10:45 a. m. service.

THE CHURCH'S REAL PLACE

(By the REV. T. W. BROWN, pastor of the Second Baptist Church) Circleville, Ohio

The Church is still our greatest potential power. It still has the largest organized group among the nations labor, business and professional people, and society in general still expect the church to be all things to them. Some groups actually think they have a corner on the church. And there are those who think the church has no definite designs in a world of reality. They suggest that the church is other-worldly and serves no definite end save to lull the people into complacency, deaden their sensibilities to stern realities, in the hope that all things will be corrected in the life to come. On the contrary, the church is a dynamic, crusading movement that aims at enabling all phases of human society to serve all who avail themselves of its ministrations. The church is not to be the tool of any special interests, nor to be misused politically, economically, socially nor otherwise. But it most certainly relates itself to all worthy objectives by furnishing them moral and spiritual idealism. Jesus was hardly concerned about creeds, ceremonies and theology. He was concerned chiefly about life situations. Too prone are we to separate religion from life. We make it a mere embellishment and not a vital and essential force in our lives. The spiritual life of man is so interwoven with his social and economic life, that to completely isolate them from each other would be to make religion a mere abstraction and the church a nonentity. Religion as interpreted by the Christian Church is not something apart from life.

It is a Way of life. Its purpose is to extend Christ's Kingdom and life to the realm of the sacred all-over phases of human life. The church has a definite responsibility in this period of stress and strain, uncertainty and moral laxity, when people are being uprooted and shifted here and there because of social, economic and political unrest. The church must stand as a beacon to guide those lost, as it were, at sea.

The church must give sanctuary to the migrants, and seek to adjust them to a strange place and assimilate and integrate them into their new environment. The church must offer hope, guidance, fellowship and moral idealism. The church should not abandon its lofty stand and resort to cheap entertainment in competition with those places that appeal to the baser instincts of mankind. The church still offers the greatest opportunity to mingle with the masses. Those of better educational advantages should go into the church and move about amongst the people and share with those who have not been so fortunate. Those settled in any community ought to teach and encourage newcomers to obey the laws, to be quiet and orderly. There is entirely too much riot and abuse of privileges in our midst, and if not checked, it will make life miserable for all of us. This is a challenge to church people, especially to the intellectuals. I am happy to say that in our church, and in other churches, there are several persons who figure prominently in the civic, cultural and social life of the nation, and at the same time answer the call of the church. We could wish that there were more.

The church cannot attain a higher level until it attracts a higher calibre of active communicants and can appreciate a high type minister to the extent that they will support him well so he will not be forced to cater to folk's baser instincts and turn the worship into a virtual floor show to get a living salary. Amen

Distances Are Disappearing

How far is away? Distance, like all other matters, is relative. In the horse and buggy days, far away could mean 50 miles. With the modernization of the automobile, no spot in the United States was actually far away from any other.

Turbo-jet engines decreased the time required to hop from one continent to another to a few hours.

"Memory, no less than hope, owes its charm to the 'far away,'" wrote Bulwer Lytton. But is there any far away, today? Is this not the age when man is on the threshold of interplanetary travel?

To come back to earth, there is a practical answer to the question: How far is away? At sea level, an individual of average height has a visual range of 2.9 miles, if the day is clear.

The scale continues: At 100 feet, 13

Geography Is on the Move

That time stands still for no man is an old adage which has proven particularly applicable in the atomic age. It has an equally pertinent parallel in geographic boundaries. Since 1941, reports the National Geographic Society, this planet has sprouted 25 new nations. These fledglings have a combined population equaling about half the world's total.

Evolution is a mild term to describe the geographic changes which have taken place in the last decade and a half. Eruption would be a more descriptive one. Many of the new nations were formed either through the dissolution of empires or armed revolution. Others incorporated no physical changes, merely the adoption of a new name.

It is perhaps indicative of Asia's political turmoil that the area produced 19 of the 25

A New Classless Society?

It is an old rule of nature that birds of a feather flock together. The sociologists called it "community of kind" which makes it a bit more obscure but it is the same idea.

The Communists harped upon the idea of a classless society, one in which all men would be economically equal; but long before Karl Marx, Thomas Jefferson wrote the doctrine of political and social equality into the Declaration of Independence.

The Russians had a most unusual opportunity to establish a classless society because in the 1917 revolution, all the upper classes, royalty, the nobility, the bureaucracy, the upper and lower middle classes were either killed or ran away. Remaining were the proletarian factory workers, the peasants and the unpropertied intellectuals.

The squeezing out of the lower middle class in Russia was so obvious during 1917-18 that it has remained for me an everlasting caution. It started with the inflation when money ceased to have any value. The lower middle class, storekeepers, bank clerks, lawyers, doctors, school teachers, etc., had their equities in money or in stocks or bonds. When money lost value, their equities were wiped away and they possessed only their clothes and perhaps a few trinkets, some furniture and similar small possessions.

At first, they tried to sell these personal belongings for money, but as the value of the money faded away, they wanted to barter. In time, they became part of the proletariat, seeking jobs in the government and the brighter ones getting into the Communist Party.

Here the old rule of community of kind began to function. The party became a class. Those who belonged to the party had special privileges. In time, those who won the Order of Lenin had extraordinary privileges.

A government or a party of officials had specific privileges depending upon the job or rank. A Stakhanovist, that is, a high speed worker, came into privilege.

In a word, a privileged class developed and that class had gradations similar to an aristocracy. At the apex stood the Secretary of the Communist Party—Stalin, Malenkov, Khrushchev. To repeat, the sociological rule of community of kind asserted itself. Milovan Djilas, who is in prison in Yugoslavia for discovering that Communism

But are these distances, impressive as they might seem, not picayune by modern standards? Man has sent himself and his objects many miles above the earth's surface, and is apparently on the verge of going even further into space.

Or, even discounting all the modern contrivances to propel man from one place to another, has he not always had the ability to view the stars, moon and other heavenly bodies with his naked eye?

It would appear, then, that there can be no accurate definition of the phrase, far away, other than that the object so described is not in the same place as the person who thus describes it.

has produced in each country where it operates, a privileged society, wrote in his book, "The New Class".

"...Human society cannot be compared to species of animals or to inanimate objects; it is composed of individuals and groups which are continuously and consciously active in it, growing and changing."

The he said: "...contemporary Communism does not deny the existence of an objective or unchanging body of laws. However, when in power, it acts in an entirely different manner toward human society and the individual, and uses methods to establish its power different from those its theories would suggest. "Beginning with the premise that they alone know the laws which govern society, Communists arrive at the oversimplified and unscientific conclusion that this alleged knowledge gives them the power and the exclusive right to change society and to control its activities. This is the major error of their system."

Actually the Communist society in the short period of 40 years, has transformed a graded society based upon land tenure and birth into a graded society based upon political relationships and the holding of particular positions. In the former, at the apex, stood an autocrat, the Czar; in the latter stands an autocrat, the Secretary of the Communist Party. In the former, the ultimate rank was a quality of birth; in the latter it is achieved by machinations and struggles within the party which could include murder and exile.

Each system based itself upon the will of a deity. The Czarist system of primogeniture was assumed to exist by divine right; the Communist system is based upon a twisted and tendentious reading of Marx and Lenin and the authority of Democratic Centralism. As Djilas says: "Marx's revolutionary ideas, which were conditional and not universally applicable, were changed by Lenin into absolute and universal principles."

Lenin is regarded as the Aristotle of the revolution. Actually, he was a pendant revolutionist who had little understanding of such countries as the United States and Great Britain. As Djilas says: "Almost nothing remained of original Marxism."

In fact, today, little remains of Leninism. Soviet Russia is as stratified a society as Czarist Russia was.

Have Headaches? Just Relax

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

A person who tries to be perfect in everything he does will very often find his reward is—a headache.

I don't want you to use this as an excuse for not really trying in anything you do. But the fact is that those of you who work too hard to do too much are perfect candidates for migraines.

Migraine headaches are caused by a painful distension of the head's blood vessels. Often they are very severe and throbbing. In bad attacks, you may become ill and even vomit.

While they can begin any time, they usually start early in the morning. You might have one when you awake.

What can be done about them? As you know, I've always urged you to see your doctor when you are ill. This advice is just as applicable in a case of prolonged and repeated headaches.

However, two out of every three persons with headaches can do a great deal toward helping themselves if they will only take things a bit easier and not try to do everything just right.

Distances Are Disappearing

How far is away? Distance, like all other matters, is relative. In the horse and buggy days, far away could mean 50 miles. With the modernization of the automobile, no spot in the United States was actually far away from any other.

Turbo-jet engines decreased the time required to hop from one continent to another to a few hours.

"Memory, no less than hope, owes its charm to the 'far away,'" wrote Bulwer Lytton. But is there any far away, today? Is this not the age when man is on the threshold of interplanetary travel?

To come back to earth, there is a practical answer to the question: How far is away? At sea level, an individual of average height has a visual range of 2.9 miles, if the day is clear.

The scale continues: At 100 feet, 13

miles; at 1,000 feet, 42 miles; at 3,000 feet, 72 miles; at 10,000 feet, 132 miles; at 25,000 feet, 180 miles, and at 40,000 feet, 250 miles.

But are these distances, impressive as they might seem, not picayune by modern standards? Man has sent himself and his objects many miles above the earth's surface, and is apparently on the verge of going even further into space.

Or, even discounting all the modern contrivances to propel man from one place to another, has he not always had the ability to view the stars, moon and other heavenly bodies with his naked eye?

It would appear, then, that there can be no accurate definition of the phrase, far away, other than that the object so described is not in the same place as the person who thus describes it.

Geography Is on the Move

That time stands still for no man is an old adage which has proven particularly applicable in the atomic age. It has an equally pertinent parallel in geographic boundaries. Since 1941, reports the National Geographic Society, this planet has sprouted 25 new nations. These fledglings have a combined population equaling about half the world's total.

Evolution is a mild term to describe the geographic changes which have taken place in the last decade and a half. Eruption would be a more descriptive one. Many of the new nations were formed either through the dissolution of empires or armed revolution. Others incorporated no physical changes, merely the adoption of a new name.

It is perhaps indicative of Asia's political turmoil that the area produced 19 of the 25 new states. It is also noteworthy that the two most populous new nations, Red China and India, as well as many of the smaller ones, cannot by any stretch of the imagination be called allies of the United States.

Of those which severed ties to various colonial empires, six were formerly controlled by France, five by Britain, one by Italy and one by Denmark. His story no doubt will record this short period as one of the most disruptive to "colonialism."

Parents of today will themselves learn a great lesson if they attempt to help their children with geography homework. One-fourth of the nations they studied in school have been replaced by others. It is not too surprising, in a world which moves as fast as this one does, that the generation which witnessed these changes should learn of them for the first time from a modern textbook.

A New Classless Society?

By George Sokolsky

It is an old rule of nature that birds of a feather flock together. The sociologists called it "community of kind" which makes it a bit more obscure but it is the same idea.

The Communists harped upon the idea of a classless society, one in which all men would be economically equal; but long before Karl Marx, Thomas Jefferson wrote the doctrine of political and social equality into the Declaration of Independence.

The Russians had a most unusual opportunity to establish a classless society because in the 1917 revolution, all the upper classes, royalty, the nobility, the bureaucracy, the upper and lower middle classes were either killed or ran away. Remaining were the proletarian factory workers, the peasants and the unpropertied intellectuals.

The squeezing out of the lower middle class in Russia was so obvious during 1917-18 that it has remained for me an everlasting caution. It started with the inflation when money ceased to have any value. The lower middle class, storekeepers, school teachers, etc., had their equities in money or in stocks or bonds. When money lost value, their equities were wiped away and they possessed only their clothes and perhaps a few trinkets, some furniture and similar small possessions.

At first, they tried to sell these personal belongings for money, but as the value of the money faded away, they wanted to barter. In time, they became part of the proletariat, seeking jobs in the government and the brighter ones getting into the Communist Party.

Here the old rule of community of kind began to function. The party became a class. Those who belonged to the party had special privileges. In time, those who won the Order of Lenin had extraordinary privileges.

A government or a party of official had specific privileges depending upon the job or rank. A Stakhanovist, that is, a high speed worker, came into privilege.

In a word, a privileged class developed and that class had gradations similar to an aristocracy. At the apex stood the Secretary of the Communist Party—Stalin, Malenkov, Khrushchev.

To repeat, the sociological rule of community of kind asserted itself. Milovan Djilas, who is in prison in Yugoslavia for discovering that Communism has produced in each country where it operates, a privileged society, wrote in his book, "The New Class":

"... Human society cannot be compared to species of animals or to inanimate objects; it is composed of individuals and groups which are continuously and consciously active in it, growing and changing."

The he said: Communism does not deny the existence of an objective or unchanging body of laws. However, when in power, it acts in an entirely different manner toward human society and the individual, and uses methods to establish its power different from those its theories would suggest.

"Beginning with the premise that they alone know the laws which govern society, Communists arrive at the oversimplified and unscientific conclusion that this alleged knowledge gives them the power and the exclusive right to change society and to control its activities. This is the major error of their system."

Actually the Communist society in the short period of 40 years, has transformed a graded society based upon land tenure and birth into a graded society based upon political relationships and the holding of particular positions. To do that, you've got to change your attitude about a lot of things. For one thing, don't insist on perfection in everything you do. Do your best, but don't try to work beyond your capacity.

Don't tackle too many jobs in one day. Believe it or not, most jobs can be done just as easily tomorrow.

Take time out to relax. I know you housewives have a lot of chores to do about the home. Nevertheless, try to set up a regular time for just sitting and resting.

One more thing. Try to accept people as they are. Don't expect too much from them—or yourself.

British Said Able To Tame H-Bomb

PARIS (AP)—Britain is reported to have won the race to be first nation to tame the power released when hydrogen bombs burst.

Diplomats of three nations said the British government is preparing to announce shortly some details of what has been termed a controlled hydrogen reaction.

If the British have discovered a way of containing and controlling the energy produced in hydrogen explosions, the industrial and peaceful meanings would be difficult to measure. It might, for example, avoid the need to use scarce uranium as a raw material.

Pickaway Garden Club Visits Columbus Nursery

Mrs. Piehler Gives Talk

The Pickaway Garden Club held its regular December meeting at Warwick's Nursery, Columbus, Thursday night. Twenty-three members and guests were present to hear Mrs. Howard Piehler, Gahanna give a demonstration on Christmas arrangements. As she talked Mrs. Piehler constructed two compositions. CRANBERRY CALICO CAKE — Here's a moist rich cake that's beautiful too with its pink frosting made of cranberry sauce and cream cheese.

CRANBERRY LATTICE PIE — This is a delicious pie. It is made of cranberries, raisins and ginger snap crumbs.

Cranberries Make Delectable Desserts

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN
King Features Syndicate

In too many homes, cranberries come to table just once a year, with the traditional turkey. It's their one and only appearance. Instead of starring, the tangy American bog berries are a mere side dish to the main offering.

Fresh cranberries are in season now and deserve to be served more often. They're especially good when used for desserts.

Two colorful dishes are Cranberry Crinkle and Lattice Pie. The latter is one of the prettiest pastries you'll ever bake. The red berries peep through the lattice top, make it a beauty.

Calico Cake is a third delectable dainty — wonderful with coffee! Cranberries, chopped dates and pecans are mixed into the batter and a pink frosting (cranberries and cream cheese) tops off this treat.

Cranberry Lattice Pie: Boil 2 c. fresh cranberries and 1/2 c. raisins in 1 c. water. When berries burst, add 1 c. sugar. Cool; add 1/2 c. ginger snap crumbs, 1 egg slightly beaten and 1 tsp. orange juice.

Fill an unbaked pastry shell. Cover with a lattice top. Bake 25 min. in hot oven, 450 F.

Cranberry Calico Cake: Cream 1 c. shortening with 1 1/2 c. granulated sugar until light and fluffy. Add 4 eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition.

Sift together 3 c. sifted flour, 2 1/2 tsp. baking powder, 1/2 tsp. salt. Stir 1/2 c. milk and 1/4 c. orange juice together.

Add sifted dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with liquid. Blend thoroughly. Fold in 1 c. chopped dates, 1/2 c. chopped pecans and 2 c. fresh cranberries, coarsely chopped.

Spoon batter into 10-in. tube pan, well greased and floured. Bake in moderate oven, 350 F., for 1 hr. and 20 min. When cool, frost with Cranberry Cream Cheese Frosting.

Cranberry Cream Cheese Frosting: Soften 1 (3 oz.) pkg. cream cheese with 4 tbsp. whole cranberry sauce. Add 1/2 tsp. salt. Gradually add 1 lb. confectioner's sugar. Beat until creamy.

Darby Edges Walnut, 70-69, On Last-Second Field Goal

By J. I. Smith
Herald Staff Writer

Gary Wardell's last-second one-hander gave Darby a spine-chilling 70-69 grudge victory over Walnut last night at Derby.

For an entire year, since the 1956 Pickaway County tournament, the Darby team, school, and fans anxiously awaited last night's game with the school responsible for Darby's elimination from last year's tournament. Darby defeated Walnut in the tournament, but was forced to forfeit the game to the Tigers on a protest by Walnut due to using an ineligible man, who had played too many total quarters.

Darby started out hotter than a Fourth of July firecracker, scoring 13 points before Walnut got near the bucket to tally a field goal. With this first goal by Lindell Bell, Walnut began using a full-court press that it relentlessly maintained throughout the entire game. Darby continued its hot streak to lead at the quarter's end 19 to 9.

The second period was the reverse of the first quarter as Walnut's press worked to perfection and the Tigers 29 points to take a 58 to 35 lead at halftime. Danny Stone was sensational in this period as he tallied 18 of his 23 points with corner shots and drive-ins from the side. Darby became flustered, which resulted in many turnovers.

Ronny Guthell, the game's top scorer with 25 points, had trouble in the first half. He was called for traveling with his fall-away one-handed push shot. He wasn't the only Darby man having trouble as the entire team was rushed off its feet the second period by a fast paced Walnut five.

WALNUT ROSE to a 43 to 35 lead early in the third period before Guthell dropped in a free throw with five minutes and 40 seconds left in the quarter.

Darby, facing a 52-57 deficit at the start of the fourth quarter, pour on the "goals" and tied up the ball game at 61-61 with three minutes and 40 seconds left showing on the clock. At the 1:35 mark game was again tied at 65 to 65.

ell scored with a running jump to force Walnut ahead, but Wardell, the ultimate hero, tallied on a charity toss. Then Walnut's 58 was fouled and sent the Tigers three points ahead scoring on a one and one situation. Darby's sensational sophomore ball handler, Tommy Walters, then rebounded for two points to set up the exciting climax of a hard fought game.

Wardell was carried from the court by jubilant Darby fans, but credit is due the entire team for a come-back rally that provided Pickaway County with its outstanding game so far this year. Coach John McPherson used five men compared to Walnut's seven.

3-Way Tie In Grid Loop May Remain

49ers Given Edge To Be Team To Play Browns for Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Western Conference title in the National Football League will be on the line Sunday with San Francisco, Detroit and Baltimore each hoping to finish on top. And among the three, the 49ers appear to have the easiest assignment.

Since the leading teams are deadlocked with 7-4 records it is quite possible a triple tie will result after Sunday's action, necessitating a complicated playoff to decide which club will challenge the Cleveland Browns for the league championship.

Most of the important doings will take place on the West Coast where the 49ers will tangle with the Green Bay Packers and Baltimore with the Los Angeles Rams. Detroit will face the Bears in Chicago.

The weekend competition actually gets under way in Philadelphia today with the Eagles playing host to the Chicago Cardinals. San Francisco will be seeking its fourth straight victory over Green Bay. The 49ers whipped the Packers 24-14 last month and are rated two touchdown favorites to repeat.

In their first meeting this season, the Colts walloped the Rams 31-14. But that one was in Baltimore. The contest figures to shape up as a passing duel between Baltimore's John Unitas and Los Angeles' Norm Van Brocklin.

Detroit, which remained in contention by turning back Cleveland 20-7 last Sunday, dropped a 27-7 verdict to the Bears earlier in the season. The Bears are favored by three points.

The Giants' loss to Pittsburgh a week ago put the "so what" tag on their game against Cleveland, the Eastern Division champs, Sunday.

The pressure will be on the Lions and Coach Paddy Driscoll says his Bears will come up with "something a little new."

Paddy also divulged that he expected the Lions to come up with something new. This, of course, might not be a matter of choice in Detroit's case.

The Lions will be playing without two of their top offensive stars—quarterback Bobby Layne and halfback Gene Gedman. Both were injured in Detroit's victory over Cleveland last Sunday.

Filling in for Layne, Detroit's passing ace, will be Tobin Rose, who ran the team well against Cleveland after Layne's departure. Either Tom Tracy or Howard Cassady will fill in for Gedman.

The Bears, who whipped the Lions, 27-6 at Detroit, are three-point favorites mainly because Layne will not be on the field.

"Layne is a great leader," said Driscoll. "That's where the Lions will miss him. He's a clutch player who can rally a team."

The Bears, however, are in top shape and are seeking to finish the season with two straight victories and a 6-6 record.

Detroit Coach George Wilson says he'll keep his fingers crossed so that nothing will happen to Rose in the ball game.

"We've got plenty of incentive to win this one," he said. "The Bears beat us out of division honors last year and they beat us the first time we met this year. Besides that, there might not be another game for us this year if we don't win Sunday."

Amanda Subdues Stoutsville 65-47, with Late Point Spurt

Amanda defeated arch-rival Stoutsville last night 65 to 47 with a solid fourth period rally that left the Indians breathless and practically scoreless with five points. Amanda tallied 19 to wrap up a game that was close until the final period.

Playing on even terms for the first three quarters, Amanda led throughout with a 21 to 19 score on the board at the end of the first quarter. Both teams scored eight points in the second period as Amanda maintained a two point lead 29-27 at halftime.

Pirates Even Season Record In 73-46 Win

Pickaway last night evened its season's standing at 3 and 3 with a 73 to 46 victory over winless Monroe. Played on the Pickaway hardwood, the Pirates took advantage of the home court to score 31 of 66 attempts from the field for a respectable 45 per cent shooting average.

Pickaway held a slim 15 to 12 margin in the first quarter but increased it to 35 to 24 by halftime. Doubling the score in the third period, 19 to 9, Pickaway wrapped up the ball game and coasted down the fourth quarter home stretch with the second five gaining experience.

This easy victory was a rest for Pickaway coach, Charlie Baxter, as his first two victories were by one point over Jackson and Kingston. Dwight Newhouse and Eddie Evans were the Pirate pacesetters with 23 and 21 points respectively. Bigam was high for Monroe with 12 points.

The Pickaway reserves also garnered a victory, trouncing Monroe 45 to 19. Ted Prushing led a hot reserve unit with 26 points.

Amanda's Neil Delong caught fire in the third period to keep his team in contention as it doubled its two point lead to remain on top 46 to 42 with only the final period left. The last quarter was all Amanda and so was the final score.

Delong and Skip Young, Amanda's two top scorers, led the attack with 22 and 16 points respectively. Ray Rinecheld and Ronny Hill, the center men who tally most of their points under the bucket, led Stoutsville with 12 and 16 points.

Stoutsville which absorbed its first loss in the last four outings now stands even for the season with 3 and 3. Amanda, whose only loss was at the hands of powerful Pleasantville, has a 4 and 1 record.

Before a national television audience, Don Carter, 31, bowled down a St. Louis teammate, Tom Hennessey, with a 2.28 Petersen Point margin.

Earlier, Mrs. Marion Ladewig, 43, had a far easier time than Carter. She breezed to a 10.58

Unioto Whips Centralia

The Centralia Bulldogs last night dropped their second game of the season to a fired-up Unioto five, 55 to 53. With 10 seconds left to play and Unioto leading by one point, a foul was called on a Bulldog player. The free throw was scored and the ball game was history.

The Unioto Shermans took a 14 to 13 first quarter lead, but were held to five points in the second period as Centralia forged ahead 27 to 19. Unioto rallied in the third period to trail 41 to 40 at the quarter's end.

The game was marked by the ability of Unioto to contain the Bulldog's Bobby Shaw to six points. Shaw carried a 22.3 average into last night's game. The Shermans had a taller aggregation and Shaw was unable to get off the majority of his shots.

Bob Whitsel led Centralia with 16 followed by Floyd Myers with 13. Unioto's Slater was the top scorer in the contest with 17 points. Centralia now stands at 5-2 for the season.

Santa and the STRONG BOY

by LUCRECE HUDGINS BEALE

SYNOPSIS: The old, old woman tells Richard she can find her witch friends only on a far away mountain so Richard moves the woman's house to the mountain and that night a witch comes to the door.

CHAPTER 10 THE UNDERGROUND WHEELBARROW

When the scratching came at the door Richard hid in the corner. But the old, old woman said, "I told you they'd come!" and she hobbled across the room and threw open the door.

In came a young woman dressed in black. She ran her fingers through her hair and streaks of lightning flashed round her head. Her hands were very white with nails six inches long.

"Greetings!" she cried to the old, old woman.

"I'm so glad to see you," said the old, old woman. "I've been so lonesome for you and your family."

"How did you ever get your house here?" asked the witch.

The old, old woman motioned to the corner where Richard stood staring fearfully at the witch.

"This boy brought my house here on his back. In return I've promised you'd tell him the way to Santa Land."

"Santa Land! I've never been there. It's much too cold for me."

"But do you know the way?"

"Sampam, the goblin, runs an underground wheelbarrow," said the witch. "It goes from Fairy Land to Santa Land to Nursery Story Land three times a day."

Richard crept out of his corner. "Can I get on it?" he asked timidly.

"I don't see how," said the witch. "It runs 200 feet underground. You could never get so far down even though I happen to know it runs directly under this house."

"I could dig down!" declared Richard.

"Ha!" scoffed the witch. "It would take ten giants to dig that far. How could a shivering thing like you do it?"

"Let him try," said the old, old woman. She took Richard into the kitchen and gave him a spade. He went out and gently picked up the house and moved it 20 yards away. Then he began to dig.

Before long he had dug a hole so deep he couldn't see the top. Suddenly he heard a rumbling and the earth around him shook. "It's coming in!" he screamed.

"No!" shouted the witch from the top of the hole. "It's Sampam's wheelbarrow. You're almost there."

Richard gave one more heave with the shovel and the wall of the hole opened up. He found himself in a large tunnel lit with lanterns. As he stood there the rumbling noise grew louder and louder until finally, with a mighty roar, a giant wheelbarrow came into view.

In the wheelbarrow sat a girl and a boy and pushing the barrow was a fat little goblin. This was Sampam.

"Hop in," he said to Richard. "Where are you going?"

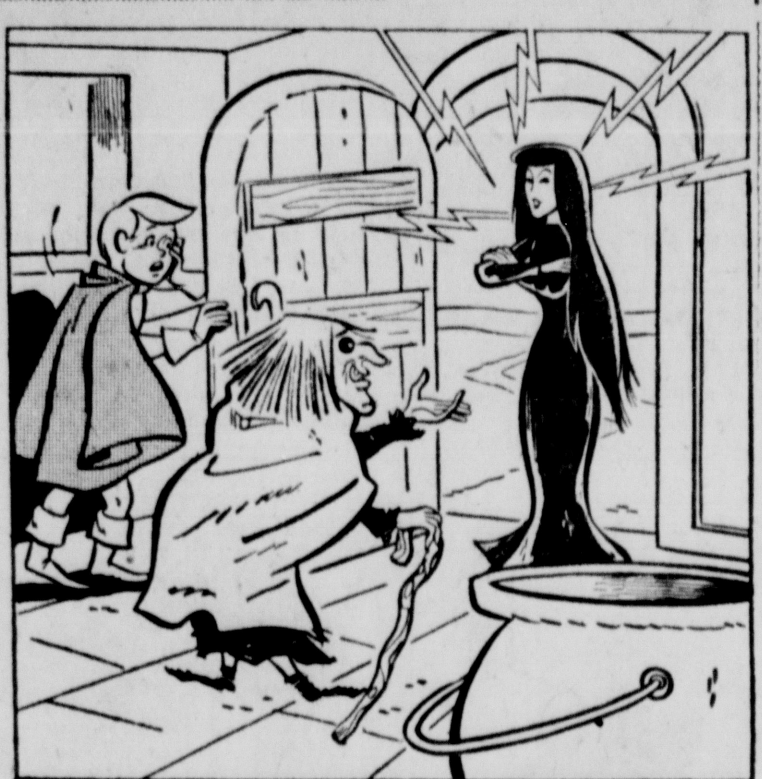

"To Santa Land," quavered Richard.

"That's our next stop," said Sampam. "Move over kids. This is Miss Muffet and Mr. Simon. They're going to a party in the Land of Oz."

Richard climbed in and Sampam picked up the handles of the wheelbarrow and charged down the tunnel.

"Why are you going to Santa Land?" asked Miss Muffet.

"I am neither brave nor smart," said Richard shyly. "And

Lightning flashed about the young witch.

I thought Santa would help me." "Shucks," said Mr. Simon. "I'm not smart either. I once went fishing in a rain barrel."

"And I'm not brave," said Miss Muffet. "Even spiders frighten me."

Richard looked at them in astonishment. It was the first time he'd known that there were other children in the world neither brave nor wise. He wished he could stay as he was and be with these wonderful friends forever.

"But, he thought, after all, I am a prince and I must save my father's kingdom."

Just then Sampam cried out, "Hold on! We're coming into Santa Land!"

Contractor's Delay Is Proven Costly

HAMILTON (AP) — A train-blocked crossing Thursday delayed a contractor in reaching a school board meeting, costing him a $408,000 job and the taxpayers $23,000.

The school board had set 12 noon as the deadline for opening bids on the electrical work on two new high schools. Curt Campbell, who operates an electrical company, said the street was blocked by a freight train and he arrived eight minutes too late.

It developed that the bid he was to offer for the school work amounted to $408,000. The next lowest bid was for $431,000.

After 42 Years, Books Returned

ALLIANCE (AP) — The Alliance Public Library has restored to its shelves two volumes on mineral resources which had been missing since 1915.

The books were found in a collection of books donated to the library recently. The donor's name wasn't disclosed.

As the works were basic references that have not gone out of date, they still are useful.

If the books had been counted as overdue, the fine would have been $276.65.

But they never had been checked out. They just disappeared from the shelves.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Thirteen years ago, Cleo M. (Ike) Orrison lost his dog tag while in the Army in New Guinea.

This week he received the metal identification tag back along with a letter from Robert A. Rolfe, a draftsman in the Royal Dutch Navy.

Rolfe wrote Orrison's sister, Mrs. Lloyd Miller of Panhandle, Tex., whose name was on the dog tag as Orrison's next of kin.

He offered his condolence on Orrison's apparent death in the jungle and explained while clearing a site for erection of a new building he had found the tag.

Gary Cooper's Family 'Hep' On Underwater Explorations

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Looking for something the whole family can do together? Then try underwater exploration.

The Gary Cooper family does it, and they have the time of their lives.

This I learned from Cooper himself, a man not noted for loquacity. But he talked at great length about his family's submarine adventures. It seems they took it up at Antibes last summer on a European vacation. Now they're exploring the Southern California coast, Coop, his wife Rocky and their beautiful daughter Maria.

You'll find them on weekends off the coast of Palos Verdes or Catalina Island. And in water that is a chilling 60 degrees on the surface and as low as 45 degrees below!

"But you don't notice the cold," he explained. "You wear rubber suits that cover you up completely and keep the cold out."

Cooper, who was dressed inconspicuously in a tuxedo for "10 North Frederick," explained that his

Drunk Driving Rap Loses on Appeal

HAMILTON (AP) — The First District Court of Appeals has thrown out the conviction of a Westchester man for drunk driving.

The appellate court Friday unanimously reversed a municipal court conviction, later affirmed in Butler County Common Pleas Court, of Fred Wieke, whose car went into a ditch on U. S. 25 at nearby Maud March 26, 1956.

The opinion concluded: "From the record made in this case, we are of the opinion that the defendant's guilt was not proved beyond a reasonable doubt."

Husband of Actress Now Serving Sentence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Anthony Franciosa, husband of actress Shelley Winters, is serving a 10-day sentence today at the sheriff's honor farm for kicking a newspaper photographer last April.

He was convicted of assaulting a photographer who attempted to take a picture of the actor and Miss Winters leaving an auction.

Franciosa said he objected to being photographed with Miss Winters because they were not married at that time.

Santa and the STRONG BOY

by LUCRECE HUDGINS BEALE

SYNOPSIS: The old, old woman tells Richard she can find her witch friends only on a far away mountain so Richard moves the woman's house to the mountain and that night a witch comes to the door.

CHAPTER 10 THE UNDERGROUND WHEELBARROW

When the scratching came at the door Richard hid in the corner. But the old, old woman said, "I told you they'd come!" and she hobbled across the room and threw open the door.

In came a young woman dressed in black. She ran her fingers through her hair and streaks of lightning flashed round her head. Her hands were very white with nails six inches long.

"Greetings!" she cried to the old, old woman.

"I'm so glad to see you," said the old, old woman. "I've been so lonesome for you and your family."

"How did you ever get your house here?" asked the witch.

The old, old woman motioned to the corner where Richard stood staring fearfully at the witch. "This boy brought my house here on his back. In return I've promised you'd tell him the way to Santa Land."

"Santa Land! I've never been there. It's much too cold for me."

"But do you know the way?"

"Sampam, the goblin, runs an underground wheelbarrow," said the witch. "It goes from Fairy Land to Santa Land to Nursery Story Land three times a day."

Richard crept out of his corner. "Can I get on it?" he asked timidly.

"I don't see how," said the witch. "It runs 200 feet underground. You could never get so far down even though I happen to know it runs directly under this house."

"I could dig down!" declared Richard.

"Ha!" scoffed the witch. "It would take ten giants to dig that far. How could a shivering thing like you do it?"

"Let him try," said the old, old woman. She took Richard into the kitchen and gave him a spade. He went out and gently picked up the house and moved it 20 yards away. Then he began to dig.

Before long he had dug a hole so deep he couldn't see the top. Suddenly he heard a rumbling and the earth around him shook. "It's caving in!" he screamed.

"No!" shouted the witch from the top of the hole. "It's Sampam's wheelbarrow. You're almost there."

Richard gave one more heave with the shovel and the wall of the hole opened up. He found himself in a large tunnel lighted with lanterns. As he stood there the rumbling noise grew louder and louder until finally, with a mighty roar, a giant wheelbarrow came into view.

In the wheelbarrow sat a girl and a boy and pushing the barrow was a fat little goblin. This was Sampam.

"Hop in," he said to Richard. "Where are you going?"

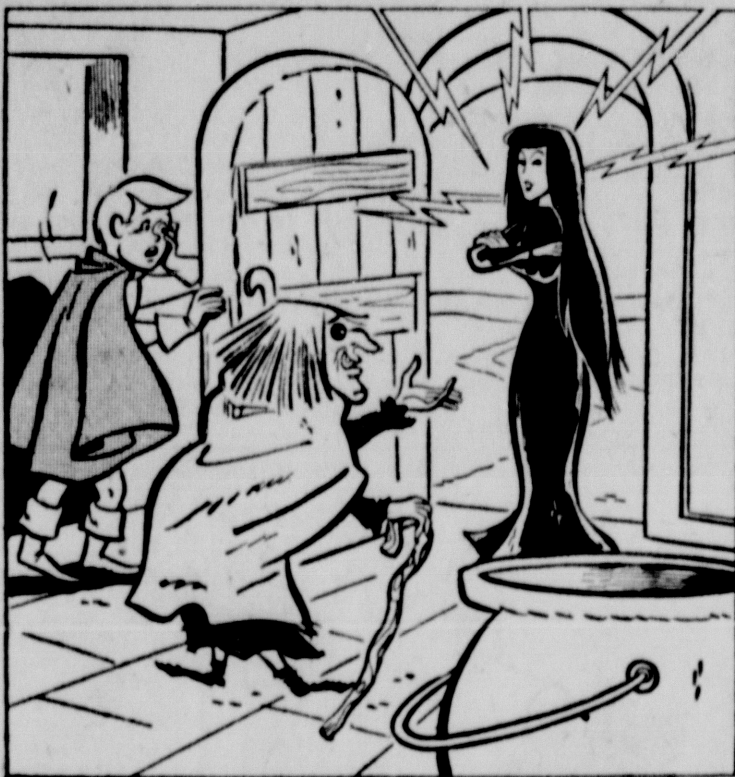

"To Santa Land," quavered Richard.

"That's our next stop," said Sampam. "Move over kids. This is Miss Muffet and Mr. Simon. They're going to a party in the Land of Oz."

Richard climbed in and Sampam picked up the handles of the wheelbarrow and charged down the tunnel.

"Why are you going to Santa Land?" asked Miss Muffet.

"I am neither brave nor smart," said Richard shyly. "And

Lightning flashed about the young witch.

I thought Santa would help me." "Shucks," said Mr. Simon. "I'm not smart either. I once went fishing in a rain barrel."

"And I'm not brave," said Miss Muffet. "Even spiders frighten me."

Richard looked at them in astonishment. It was the first time he'd known that there were other children in the world neither brave nor wise.

He wished he could stay as he was and be with these wonderful friends forever.

"But, he thought, after all, I am a prince and I must save my father's kingdom."

Just then Sampam cried out, "Hold on! We're coming into Santa Land!"

Contractor's Delay Is Proven Costly

HAMILTON (AP)—A train-blocked crossing Thursday delayed a contractor in reaching a school board meeting, costing him a $408,000 job and the taxpayers $23,000.

The school board had set 12 noon as the deadline for opening bids on the electrical work on two new high schools. Curt Campbell, who operates an electrical company, said the street was blocked by a freight train and he arrived eight minutes too late.

It developed that the bid he was to offer for the school work amounted to $408,000. The next lowest bid was for $431,000.

After 42 Years, Books Returned

ALLIANCE (AP)—The Alliance Public Library has restored to its shelves two volumes on mineral resources which had been missing since 1915.

The books were found in a collection of books donated to the library recently. The dono's name wasn't disclosed.

As the works were basic references that have not gone out of date, they still are useful.

If the books had been counted as overdue, the fine would have been $276.65.

But they never had been checked out. They just disappeared from the shelves.

Missing Dog Tag Found in Jungle

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Thirteen years ago, Cleo M. (Ike) Orrison lost his dog tag while in the Army in New Guinea.

This week he received the metal identification tag back along with a letter from Robert A. Rolfe, a draftsman in the Royal Dutch Navy.

Rolfe wrote Orrison's sister, Mrs. Lloyd Miller of Panhandle, Tex., whose name was on the dog tag as Orrison's next of kin.

He offered his condolence on Orrison's apparent death in the jungle and explained while clearing a site for erection of a new building he had found the tag.

Canton Cafe Owner Guilty in Tax Case

CLEVELAND (AP)—Frank David, 50, a Canton restaurant operator, has been convicted of income tax fraud by a Federal Court jury. During his trial, which ended Friday, it was charged that David falsified his 1948 and 1949 income tax returns for a total of $7,085.

Judge Paul C. Weick deferred sentence pending receipt of a probation report and continued David's $2,200 bail bond.

NEW YORK (AP)—King Mohammed V of Morocco ended his 19-day visit to the United States Friday night, flying home aboard the old Columbine I.

Gary Cooper's Family 'Hep' On Underwater Explorations

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Looking for something the whole family can do together? Then try underwater exploration.

The Gary Cooper family does it, and they have the time of their lives.

This I learned from Cooper himself, a man not noted for loquacity. But he talked at great length about his family's submarine adventures. It seems they took it up at Antibes last summer on a European vacation. Now they're exploring the Southern California coast. Coop, his wife Rocky and their beautiful daughter Maria.

You'll find them on weekends off the coast of Palos Verdes or Catalina Island. And in water that is a chilling 60 degrees on the surface and as low as 45 degrees below!

"But you don't notice the cold," he explained. "You wear rubber suits that cover you up completely and keep the cold out."

Cooper, who was dressed inconspicuously in a tuxedo for "10 North Frederick," explained that his family got their training for diving at the bottom of a swimming pool.

"There are several steps you must learn," he said, "how to empty your mask of water when you are beneath the surface. How to take off the mask underwater and put it back on again. How to remove the breathing gear in case of emergency. How to tell when your air supply is giving out."

"The graduation comes when you get a bunch of people to sit in a circle at the bottom of the swimming pool. Each one takes off his breathing gear and hands it to the next person, who puts it on himself."

Drunk Driving Rap Loses on Appeal

HAMILTON (AP)—The First District Court of Appeals has thrown out the conviction of a Westchester man for drunk driving.

The appellate court Friday unanimously reversed a municipal court conviction, later affirmed in Butler County Common Pleas Court, of Fred Wieke, whose car went into a ditch on U. S. 25 at nearby Maud March 26, 1956.

The opinion concluded: "From the record made in this case, we are of the opinion that the defendant's guilt was not proved beyond a reasonable doubt."

Zanesville Mother, 23, Accused in Burglary

ZANESVILLE (AP)—A 23-year-old Zanesville mother of two was charged Friday with attempted breaking and entering in connection with a burglary attempt at a service station here.

Police said Raymond Dobbins, 16, also of Zanesville, was wounded Friday when the service station operator opened fire with a revolver as the youth fled with the woman, Mrs. Dorothy M. Hanning. Officers said Dobbins will be similarly charged Monday.
